Direct Entry Evaluation

The Direct Input method can be used when evaluating threats/objectives with respect to another threat/objective or when evaluating events with respect to a threat/objective.

In the example below, we are asked to evaluate all the sources given Human Factor using the direct input method.

The question for the evaluation is indicated at the top of the page.

You can enter a judgment by dragging the slider on the bar or by entering a number from 0 to 1 in the text box.

Your judgment will be automatically recorded when you go to another step, such as by clicking Next.

Depending on how the Project Manager set up the evaluation, you will be asked to evaluate one event with respect to one threat/objective on each screen, or all events with respect to one threat/objective on each screen, or one event with respect to all threats/objectives on each screen.